

Hi

I'm supportive of the rescue medicals of surface emergency personnel both permanent and volunteer models, which could include defining primary and secondary roles on medicals for volunteer models.

I don't believe there are additional requirements for surface emergency personnel, however, I can see a uniform approach or expectation for medicals across the industry as beneficial to maintaining the standard.

Regarding challenges it would be an adjustment to both QMRS and open cut mines as they operate differently to underground if they adopted the same model.

Hopefully my response assists, more than happy to discuss further,

Thanks,
